LABELLING

Label the Velociraptor

Write the right word next to each letter

Our own simple drawing, not an exact copy of a fossil.

arm feathers · big eye · curved teeth · long shins · long, stiff tail · sickle claw

A _____

C _____

E _____

B _____

D _____

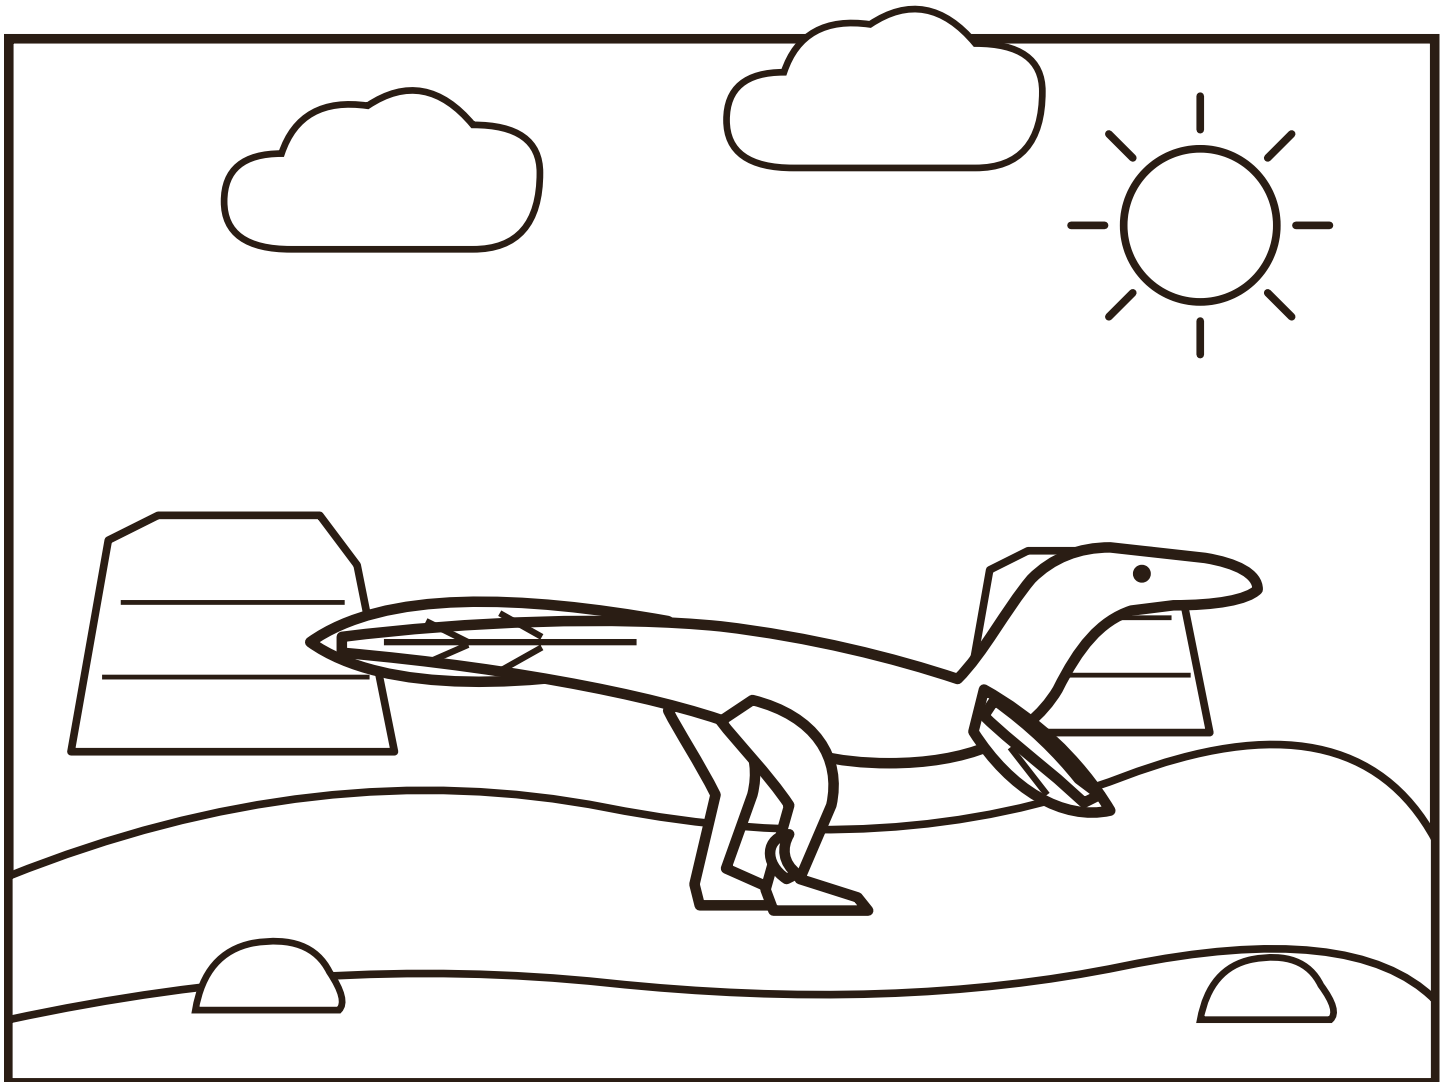

F _____

The famous curved claw sits on the second toe of each foot. In 2007, quill knobs on a Velociraptor fossil proved it had long feathers, attached from its second finger and up its arms.

COLOUR ME

In the Gobi

Colour the Velociraptor, the dunes and the cliffs

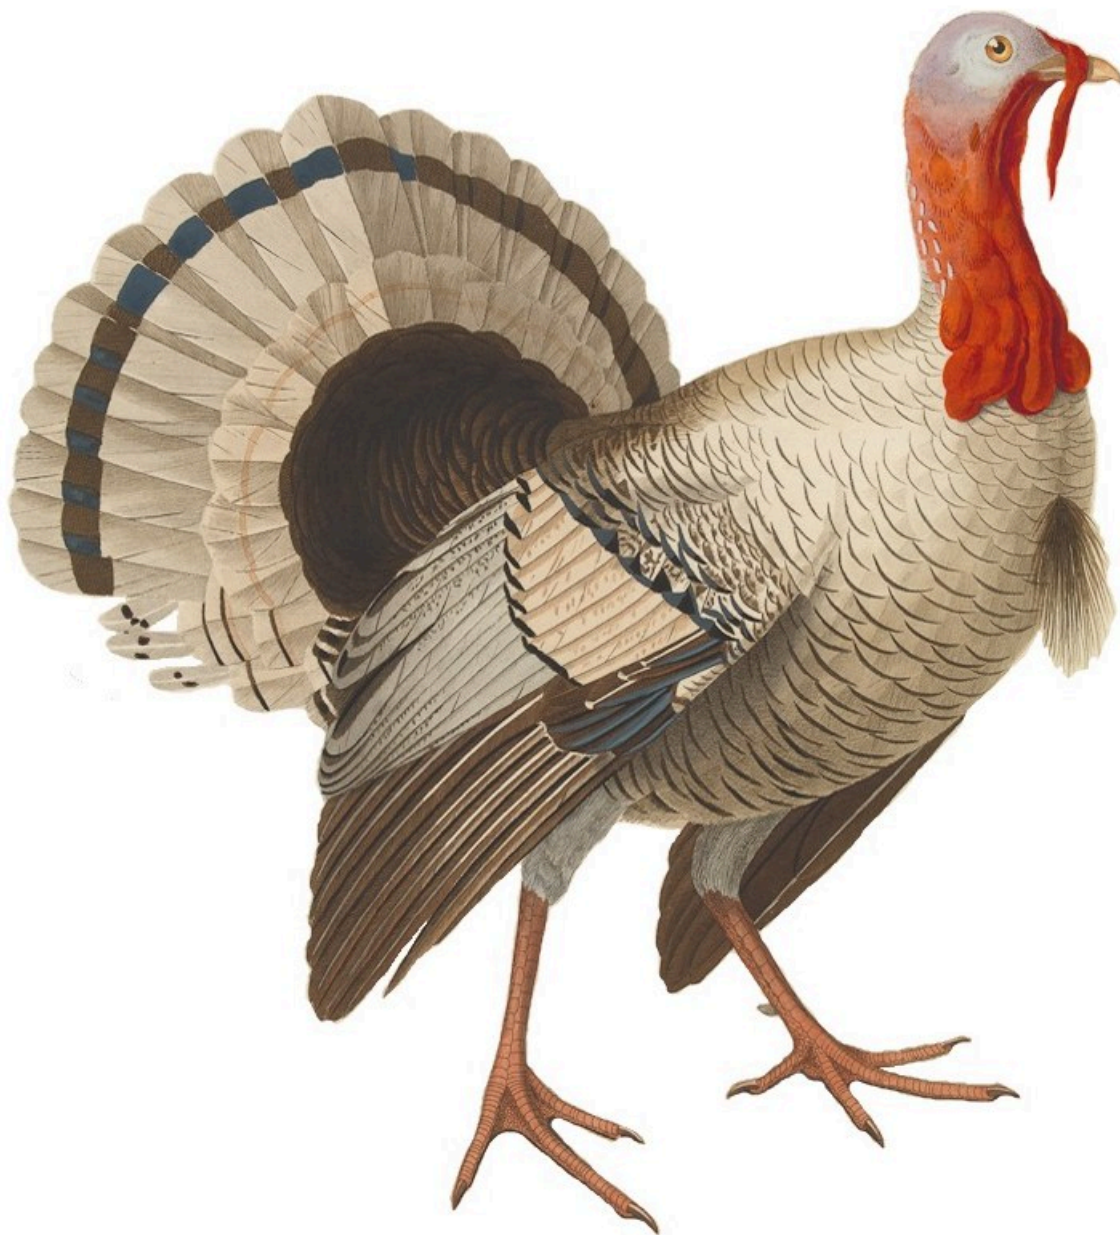

Its fossils come from Mongolia. The pair were found in red sandstone called the Djadokhta Formation, in the Gobi Desert.

Our own simple drawing, not an exact copy of a fossil.

VELOCIRAPTOR FACTS POSTER

Turkey-sized, not human-sized

A turkey, from Nederlandsche vogelen, a Dutch book of birds published between 1770 and 1829. Image: Nozeman & Sepp, Nederlandsche vogelen, public domain

The real Velociraptor

The Natural History Museum calls it a turkey-sized predator.

The Natural History Museum gives its length as 1.8 m and its weight as 7 kg.

Next to a grown-up, it would have been no more than waist-high.

WHERE THE FACTS COME FROM

Every fact in this pack was checked on 28 Oct 2026 against the Natural History Museum (London), the American Museum of Natural History, Smithsonian Magazine and the peer-reviewed scientific papers listed below. Facts that can change (such as a size estimate, or how many fossils of a species have been found) are true as of that date. Sizes of dinosaurs are estimates, and scientists still disagree about some things (such as why the Fighting Dinosaurs were fighting, or how heavy Velociraptor was): where they do, we say so. Answers to maths questions are worked out from those figures.
